Soppu Mela begins

Mysuru, Sept. 6 (MTY&BCT)- A two-day 'Soppu Mela' (Leafy Greens Mela), aimed at promoting greens as a wholesome, nutritious food while reviving the rich diversity of traditional leafy vegetables, began this morning at Nanjaraja Bahadur Choultry on Vinoba Road here.

The event is jointly organised by Sahaja Samrudha, Hulikaadu Farmers Producer Company and ICAR-JSS Krishi Vigyan Kendra, Suttur. This year's Mela showcases more than 100 varieties of greens, drawing farmers, health enthusiasts and culinary experts.

Traditional delicacies

Farmers from Kundagol, Kaadu Halli (H.D. Kote), Kanakapura and Gokarna have brought many varieties of greens and medicinal plants, alongside value-added products.

Women's groups from Kolagondanahalli, Kanakapura, served traditional delicacies such as Soppina Uppsaaru, Kalale Saaru and Ragi Mudde with Anne Soppu Saaru. Kundagol women's groups showcased several rare wild greens, while Kanakapura farmers offered special Kalale Saaru meals.

Special highlights included Kirakasali greens from North Karnataka and Kempu Soppu from Gokarna, which drew much attention. Visitors also enjoyed fresh green juices and Ragi Mudde served with Berekesoppu curry, celebrating the culinary diversity of greens.

Alongside greens, desi rice, millets, pulses, organic products, and traditional vegetable seeds and fruit saplings were available for purchase. Unique plants sourced from North India were also on display.

In a writ petition filed today, Simha has made Karnataka Government, Department of Kannada and Culture, as respondent in the case.

Jumbo neglect !

Mysuru, Sept. 6 (BLU&BCT)- The iconic elephant sculpture fountain at Maulana Abul Kalam Azad Circle, popularly known as Highway Circle, has fallen into shocking neglect, becoming a victim to the apathy of Mysuru City Corporation (MCC).

Once a visual delight as the Dasara procession passes through this Circle and is viewed across the globe, has now turned into an eyesore. The Circle is also the first grand sculpture that tourists see when they enter Mysuru from Bengaluru via LIC Circle, heading towards Sayyaji Rao Road and Mysore Palace.

The elephant sculpture fountain was originally constructed in 2016 at a cost of Rs. 25 lakh by the Brigade Group, which also handled its upkeep for a year. During this time, both, the sculpture and the Circle, looked clean, elegant and grand.

The Brigade Group in 2017 handed over the upkeep of the Circle to MCC, since then the Circle has seen a steady decline in its grandeur and upkeep.

Banners, vandalism & wild growth

The once grand fountain with sculpture has now become a circular notice board for erecting flex boards with birthday wishes, condolence messages and political event announcements.

The elephant trunks are routinely used to tie banners and now the plaster on the sculpture is peeling away. Adding to the decay, algae fills the fountain area and weeds adorn the Circle.

Repeated damage over the years

The Circle has been repeatedly vandalised over the years and every time instead of the MCC the Brigade Group has stepped in to repair and restore the broken parts. Originally made of stone, the sculpture was broken by vandals and the repeated vandalism forced the Brigade Group to remake the sculpture in hard fibre reinforced polymer.

MCC promises restoration

Speaking to Star of Mysore this morning, MCC Assistant Commissioner Shivakumar assured that steps are being taken to restore the fountain before the upcoming Dasara festivities.

"Since Dasara is just days away, the Deputy Commissioner has directed MCC to refurbish all major Circles across the city. At Highway Circle, we will clear wild growth and restore the elephant heads to their original grandeur," he said.

While the promise of action offers some hope, residents remain sceptical, pointing out that city landmarks are spruced up during Dasara and abandoned rest of the year.

EDITOR'S BOTTOMLINE

EDUCATION IS NOT A PROCESS OF FILLING A VESSEL:

September 5 is commemorated as Teachers' Day. S. Radhakrishnan wasn't just a teacher, philosopher and educationist. He was a moralist who believed that true education and proper knowledge create morally upright humans.

Like Socrates, Radhakrishnan believed that education is the kindling of a flame, not the filling of a vessel. Education is not just about acquiring knowledge and facts but rather igniting a passion for inquiry and critical thinking. It emphasises the importance of curiosity, open-mindedness and the exploration of ideas. Education is not a passive process of filling a vessel, but an active journey of discovery where the flame of knowledge is sparked and nurtured. True education should inspire individuals to think, question societal norms and seek wisdom.

The purpose of learning goes beyond mere accumulation; it encourages students to become lifelong learners and thinkers. Radhakrishnan believed that true virtue and morality could only be achieved through the attainment of knowledge and understanding. He argued that ignorance was the root cause of all wrongdoing and misdeeds, as it prevented individuals from recognising what was truly good and just. He believed that by pursuing knowledge and questioning one's own beliefs, individuals could elevate themselves towards a higher state of consciousness and live a more virtuous life.

Radhakrishnan's teachings serve as a timeless reminder that wisdom and understanding are the guiding lights in distinguishing right from wrong and that ignorance is the breeding ground for all forms of evil and injustice. He believed that ignorance is the root and stem of all evil. People do not intentionally commit evil acts but do so out of a lack of knowledge and understanding. It is only through true knowledge and awareness that individuals can discern right from wrong and act virtuously.

Ignorance prevents individuals from recognising the consequences of their actions and perpetuates a cycle of wrongdoing. Radhakrishnan said, "God lives, feels and suffers in every one of us and in course of time, His attributes, knowledge, beauty and love will be revealed in each of us." He was a practical thinker and educationist who was of the view that books are the means by which we build bridges between cultures. Radhakrishnan said, "My ambition is not only to chronicle but to interpret and reveal the movement of the mind and unfold the sources of India in the profound plane of human nature."

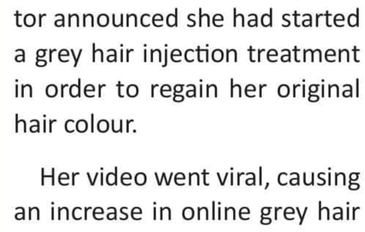
NEWS SPARKLERS

Grey hair reversing spark controversy



Beijing: Gray hair injections, a controversial way of reversing hair discolouration, recently went viral on Chinese social media, sparking a heated debate regarding their efficacy.

Chinese medicine-inspired 'grey hair injections' are currently getting a lot of attention in China for their alleged ability to turn greying hair back to its original colour. Although such products have been on the market in China for a while now, they've recently gone viral after a popular Chinese actor announced she had started a grey hair injection treatment in order to regain her original hair colour.

Her video went viral, causing an increase in online grey hair injection sales, but dermatologists and other health experts warn that the products' efficacy has not been scientifically proven and their potential side effects are currently unknown.

Live worm removed from man's brain

Hunan: Doctors recently saved a man's life after removing a squirming 18-cm-long worm that had taken residence in his brain years after swallowing raw snake organs.

The lucky man, identified only as Li was recently rushed to a hospital in Hunan after he started experiencing sudden blackouts, seizures, and foaming at the mouth. His troubles had begun about a year ago when he experienced a sensation of a foreign object in his eye, described as a mosaic-like thing appearing in his vision. He sought medical attention and while the ophthalmologist found nothing out of the ordinary after examining him, an MRI scan revealed a foreign object behind his eyes.

However, because the vision problem had disappeared, he refused to undergo surgery and have the foreign object removed. Little did he know that his decision would allow an uninvited guest to settle and grow in his brain. After conducting another MRI scan, doctors decided to perform a craniotomy. During the procedure, one of the surgeons removed the parasite intact, as it was wriggling.

Save Government Urdu School in Jyothinagar

Sir,

We bring to your attention the grave situation facing the Government Urdu Higher Primary School in Jyothinagar, Mysuru.

This institution once stood as a beacon of education for children from Ghousianagar, Shanthinagar, K.N. Pura, Udayagiri and Jyothinagar — including children of Police Officers, KEB engineers, businessmen, teachers and daily wage workers.

Over decades, this school produced well-rounded individuals — doctors, engineers, NRIs, lawyers and professionals contributing to society both in India and abroad.

The COVID-19 pandemic, however, severely affected enrollment at this school. Today, only 16 students attend and the dedicated teachers personally fund transport to ensure their attendance. It is disheartening to learn of plans to shut down this school. Instead of closure, we propose the following actionable suggestions:

1. Revive and invest in this school with a special restoration plan under a Govt. scheme.

2. Provide free transportation to students from distant neighbourhoods.

3. Establish a State-level committee to protect and promote Urdu medium schools.

4. Launch community outreach programmes to encourage parents to re-enrol their children.

Urdu is not a religious language — it evolved as a unifying mode of communication during the Mughal era and has been embraced by Hindus, Sikhs and Muslims alike. Renowned writers like Munshi Premchand and Rajendra Singh Bedi enriched its literature.

Let us act before it's too late. Saving such schools means preserving the values, culture and educational legacy of India.

Posing as Mumbai Police...

Cyber crooks dupe Mysuru woman of Rs. 27.50 lakh

Mysuru, Sept. 6 (BCT)- A shocking case of cyber fraud has surfaced in Mysuru city, where a 59-year-old woman, a Government employee from Brindavan Layout 1st Stage, was tricked and coerced into transferring a staggering Rs. 27,49,999 from her and her husband's bank accounts.

The fraudsters, posing as Mumbai Crime Branch officials, threatened her under the guise of a high-profile financial investigation.

The ordeal began on Aug. 27, when the woman received a call from an unknown number. The caller introduced himself as a Police officer from the Mumbai Crime Branch.

Moments later, he initiated a WhatsApp video call, showing visuals allegedly linked to the arrest of businessman Naresh Goyal in a money laundering case. Claiming that several ATM cards were recovered from Goyal, the fraudster alleged that the woman had received a 20 percent commission from him, making her accounts liable for investigation.

The impostor warned her that failure to cooperate would result in immediate arrest. Panicked and believing the threat to be real, the woman followed instructions and first transferred Rs. 99,999 to a bank account provided by the fraudsters. She was then asked to share a screenshot of her bank balance sheet.

After reviewing the screenshot, the caller insisted that all the funds in her account had to be transferred via RTGS for "verification purposes." Trusting their claims, the woman transferred an additional Rs. 4.5 lakh.

The intimidation escalated further when the fraudsters claimed they were initiating a "digital arrest" and demanded access to her husband's bank account for scrutiny. Terrified, she transferred Rs. 22 lakh from her husband's account to the account specified by the scammers.

The con continued until they demanded she transfer her Provident Fund (PF) savings as well. At this point, the woman grew suspicious and finally realised she had fallen victim to a well-planned cyber scam.

She has now lodged a complaint at the Cyber, Economic and Narcotics (CEN) Police Station, reporting the elaborate fraud and total loss of Rs. 27,49,999.

Police are investigating the case and have issued a warning urging the public to remain vigilant against such cybercrime tactics, especially calls impersonating law enforcement officials.

Director Ananth and others during the inauguration of awareness programme in city on Tuesday.

Mysuru, Sept. 6- The National Institute of Personnel Management (NIPM), Mysuru Chapter, in association with GRS Fantasy Park, had organised an awareness programme on the trending topic 'Digital Threat & Cyber Security' in city on Tuesday.

M. Ashwin Dange, Director, GRS Fantasy Park & GRS Engineering Pvt. Ltd., graced the occasion as the chief guest.

The keynote address was delivered by K. Shanmugha Varma, Police Inspector, Police Training School, Mysuru, who shed light on the growing challenges in cyber security and measures to safeguard against digital threats.

Make hassle-free arrangements for 'Jumboo Savari': Ex-Mayor

Sandesh Swamy

Mysuru, Sept. 6- Former Mayor Sandesh Swamy has urged the District Administration to make adequate arrangements for the people to watch the traditional Jumboo Savari procession, without any ado.

The DC, who holds the additional responsibility as Dasara Special Officer, should ensure that, the people won't experience any inconvenience, that is witnessed every year especially after the procession enters the road through Palace gate. While the discipline in arrangements can be seen only till the CM offers floral tributes to the idol of Goddess Chamundeshwari, in the Golden Howdah, marking the launch of Jumboo Savari.

The discipline should be enforced from Palace till Torchlight Parade Grounds in Bannimantap, without any security lapse. Most importantly, the unabated crowd gathered around howdah-elephant, with the swarm of volunteers and others, should be avoided, with heightened security cover. The Commando team, holding rope, should be deputed around the elephant.

Ironically, though 4-5 lakh people descend on the city to watch Dasara procession every year, the lack of novel ideas to ensure that people behold the entire procession without any hassles, is visible. The seating arrangements on the either side of procession route should be made on the lines of Independence Day at Red Fort in New Delhi. Also, security, drinking water, mobile toilets and medical services should be arranged, he added.

Jaguar dies at Mysuru Zoo

Mysuru, Sept. 6 (MTY&BCT)- The Mysuru Zoo announced the death of its male jaguar, Vikram, on Friday morning around 9 am.

The 7.7-year-old big cat succumbed to severe liver and kidney failure after being under treatment for anorexia over the past two days.

Vikram, one of the star attractions of the Zoo, was a favourite among visitors for his majestic presence and striking features. His untimely death marks a significant loss for the Zoo and its wildlife community.

The Zoo administration, veterinary team and animal caretakers expressed profound grief, describing Vikram's passing as a deeply emotional moment for everyone who had cared for him. A post-mortem was conducted and the carcass was cremated yesterday.

Zero Traffic for Dasara jumbos

Mysuru, Sept. 6 (MTY&BS)- The City Police have deployed Zero Traffic (Green Corridor) to facilitate the smooth exercise of Dasara elephants, taken on a routine walk from Mysore Palace to Bannimantap in the morning and evening hours.

The new norm has been enforced, in view of the safety of pachyderms, following a report published on Aug. 30 in In Black and White column of Star of Mysore, written by Managing Editor Vikram Muthanna. The column emphasised on traffic menace coming in the smooth way of Dasara elephants.

Ever since five elephants arrived in the second batch, Dasara elephants totalling 14 including nine which came in the first batch, are being taken on a routine walk from Mysore Palace till Torchlight Parade Grounds in Bannimantap, since Aug. 28.

Even as the elephants were ambling on the left side of the road, the vehicular riders, especially on the stretch of road sans median, were moving past, honking at times, to the inconvenience of the elephants, manoeuvred by mahouts.

With the elephants initiated into intense weight training, by mounting Gaadi-namda and cradle with sandbags on their back, since Sept. 4, with kumki elephants accompanying them on the either side, the City Police have decided to enhance traffic curbs. Soon after the elephants exit Palace premises through Balarama Gate, a stretch of Albert Victor Road between Chamaraja Wadiyar Circle and K.R. Circle is blocked for traffic.

After the elephants enter K.R. Circle, a stretch of Sayyaji Rao Road from Chikkagadiyara up to Government Ayurveda Hospital Circle is closed for vehicular traffic, followed by similar curbs on New Sayyaji Rao Road between Government Ayurveda Hospital and Torchlight Parade Grounds in Bannimantap.

Similar curbs are imposed on vehicular traffic, when the elephants return to Palace from Torchlight Parade Grounds.

Mahouts, Kavadis get traditional healing touch

Panchakarma care, massage for knee, waist, joint pains; treatments for skin, arthritis and gynaecological disorders

Mysuru, Sept. 6 (MTY&KS)- Mahouts, kavadis and their family members, who have accompanied the Dasara elephants housed in Mysore Palace premises, are being given Panchakarma treatment by Ayurveda, Yoga & Naturopathy, Unani, Siddha and Homoeopathy (AYUSH) Dept. for various ailments.

These include pain in the knees, waist, hands and legs, along with skin problems, arthritis, respiratory issues and gynaecological disorders.

The initiative comes following a request from the Forest Department, after which the District AYUSH Department set up a dedicated Panchakarma Treatment Centre within the Palace premises. The facility caters not only to mahouts, kavadis and their families but also to the staff of the Palace and Forest Department. Though the centre has been functioning since Sept. 4, the formal inauguration will soon be done by District Minister Dr. H.C. Mahadevappa, officials confirmed.

Preference for Ayurveda

It is said that mahouts, kavadis and their family members prefer Ayurveda medicines over allopathic treatments, leading to the decision to exclusively provide Ayurvedic care.

'Kati Abhyanga' 'Jaanu Abhyanga'

It is common for mahouts and kavadis, who tirelessly care for the Dasara elephants, to suffer from knee and waist pain due to their physically demanding work. To address this, the treatment centre is providing 'Kati Abhyanga' therapy for waist pain and 'Jaanu Abhyanga' therapy for knee pain. Medicinal oils are being used for massages targeting pain in the hands, legs and shoulders, offering temporary relief from discomfort. Medicines are also being provided to treat gynaecological issues in women.

The Panchakarma Treatment Centre will function daily from 9 am to 4.30 pm for one month. Adequate stocks of medicines have been readied and eight doctors serving in various hospitals across the district have been deployed to ensure smooth operations.

— Dr. C. Renukadevi, District AYUSH Officer

District AYUSH Officer Dr. C. Renukadevi has deployed a team consisting of one male and six female doctors, along with two assistants and one massage specialist, to ensure proper care. The doctors serving at the centre include Dr. M. Sandeep, Dr. Mamata, Dr. Swarnalatha, Dr. Shwetha, Dr. Rekha, Dr. Pallavi, Dr. Divya and Dr. Ranjitha.

Ailments and treatments

The centre offers treatment for a wide range of ailments such as joint pains, back pain, elbow pain, skin conditions, arthritis, cough, cold, respiratory issues, gynaecological disorders and general fatigue.

Special focus is being given to stress-relief therapies, essential for those handling elephants and undertaking demanding physical tasks during the Dasara festivities.

Panchakarma therapy, steam treatments and Ayurvedic massages using specially prepared herbal oils are being provided. Medicines in the form of solutions, 'churna' (herbal powder) and other plant-based preparations are also given free of cost to the beneficiaries.

To support these therapies, the centre has been equipped with a Panchakarma table, steam equipment, weight and height measuring devices, and other necessary instruments. Considering physically demanding nature of the work, a massage facility has been set up specifically for mahouts and kavadis in case of joint dislocations or injuries caused by accidental falls. The centre has also installed a steam box and massage cot to aid in quicker recovery.

Mysuru Dasara website launched

Mysuru, Sept. 6 (MK&VNS)- Mysuru District Administration launched a new website for this year's Dasara to be held from Sept. 22 to Oct. 2.

The website was launched by District Minister Dr. H.C. Mahadevappa on Sept. 4.

People can log on to https://mysoredasara.gov.in/ to view the list of programmes and schedules and also purchase tickets for various events including torchlight parade, jumbo savari among others when made available online.

The website will also telecast live events during Dasara, according to Dasara Special Officer and DD G. Lakshmikanth Reddy.

Flex posters & Food-paths...

Royal city, a Royal mess

Dasara is here and the administration says it is ready to welcome Dasara tourists. But the truth is, our so-called 'Royal City' is in a 'Royal Mess.'

Our footpaths have turned into 'food-paths' while our circles and medians have turned into 'flex parks.'

The city administration has clearly lost control of its streets. Vendors occupy every corner, circle and sidewalk. They are cleared out only when a VIP comes visiting; once the VIP is gone, they are back.

Mysuru's streets resemble a sprawling supermarket where everything is available: From underwear to vegetables, sofa sets to mobile screens, tender coconuts to even crabs ! And one can buy all this without getting off their bike or car.

We have heard of drive-through restaurants like McDonald's, but today we have 'drive-on' shopping in our city — shop as you drive.

Convenient for customers perhaps, but disastrous for traffic and for law-abiding shopkeepers who pay Property Tax, Trade Licence fee and GST.

Mysuru Trader Associations must protest and warn the administration that they will stop paying taxes if the vendors in front of their shops are not evicted or file a PIL.

While hawkers have taken over our footpaths, flex boards have conquered our circles and medians.

The Mysuru City Corporation (MCC) has made tall promises for nearly two decades. In 2006, it proposed to make heritage circles 'hoarding-free.' In 2009, it launched an 'illegal hoarding drive.' In 2011, it vowed to file Police cases against violators. In 2024, they said they would issue notices.

What happened? Absolutely nothing. Flex has outlasted them all.

The solutions are simple: Hawkers can be regulated by designated vending zones with nominal fees. Flex hoardings are already banned so implementation should not be an issue.

But both require a spine — a quality sadly absent in today's bureaucracy and it's not their fault.

Our officials appear terrified of local politicians who have the blessings of their senior leaders in Bengaluru.

Unfortunately, these senior leaders wield their influence in the interest of their local chamchas instead of Mysuru's. The result?

Civil servants with the IQ to clear UPSC exams are reduced to clerks, too scared to enforce the law.

For 15 years, Mysuru has suffered the consequences of this bureaucratic castration. That this decay continues even with a Chief Minister from our own city is the tragic irony.

Dasara may still dazzle tourists with elephants and lights, but for Mysureans, the everyday reality is different; we are a city littered with flexes and food-paths.

Unless our leaders or our bureaucrats stiffen their spines, our 'Royal City' will remain so only in coffee-table books.

India is beautiful, Indians make it ugly

Earlier this week, Deccan Herald reported that a few paintings by the legendary painter, sculptor and veena maestro K. Venkatappa had to be removed from display at Venkatappa Art Gallery, Bengaluru, because they had developed fungus !

This report reminded me of R.K. Narayan (RKN). The legendary author who, when asked why he sold his manuscripts to an American archive, Narayan famously replied, "If I had given my manuscripts to the (Indian) Government archives, they would have dumped them in some corner where they would have been lying gathering dust, and I would have got an acknowledgement on a buff paper. In Boston, they are preserved in air-conditioned lockers."

Yes, RKN was right. Not only is his manuscript preserved in a temperature-controlled area, but he also got paid for it.

If he had given it to our Government first, he would have been emotionally blackmailed by the press and litterateurs to give it away for free.

Next, then the Government would have preserved it so well that it would be gleaming — Gleaming with silver fish chomping away at the manuscript.

> "India is a breathtakingly beautiful country, but Indians, in their civic sense, are shockingly ugly.
> Until we learn to preserve what we have, we're just turkeys strutting around like we're peacocks !"

When art handed down for safekeeping sprouts fungus, it's not just the canvas that's rotten… we are.

I say we are a rotten people because we are a nation of vandals — wilful destroyers of what is beautiful or venerable.

Public vandalises public property and our Government vandalises heritage property.

We scrawl love lines on heritage walls, deface public sculptures, slash bus seats and smash train windows.

Remember the Tejas Express train, India's pride on wheels? It had LCD TVs, headphones, vacuum toilets, touchless taps, the works. By the end of its maiden journey, the LCDs were broken, the headphones stolen, the toilets soiled and the taps yanked out.

To stop vandalism, we have the Prevention of Damage to Public Property Act, 1984. It promises a year of imprisonment for vandalism. Yet, like most Indian laws, it exists only in theory. This emboldens vandals. Here we need to learn from Singapore.

In 1994, an American youth spray-painted a wall in Singapore. He was sentenced to six cane lashes. Even after US President Bill Clinton personally requested leniency, Singapore's Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew merely reduced it to four lashes. Today, Singapore remains spotless. India, meanwhile, remains lawless.

Our Prime Minister wants us to 'Make in India.' Perhaps first, we should ask us to pledge 'NOT to Break in India.' Instead of playing the National Anthem in theatres, the Government should flash citizens' duties and punishments for damaging public property.

Here's the truth: India is a breathtakingly beautiful country, but Indians, in their civic sense, are shockingly ugly.

We puff up about our 'international' Dasara and 'legendary' heritage and history, but until we learn to preserve them, we're just turkeys strutting around like we're peacocks !

Green Necklace...

Flower garlands are the usual choice to honour guests at events. However, at the inauguration of the two-day Soppu Mela this morning in Mysuru, the guests were seen wearing garlands made of 'Basale' greens, symbolising the vital role of leafy greens in human health and nutrition. Picture shows (from left) actor Shivaji Rao Jadhav, researcher Muraleedhara Gungurmale, Dr. R. Santhosh Nayak, Director of Prasaranga, KSOU, Dr. B.N. Gnanendra, Head of ICAR-JSS Krishi Vigyan Kendra, Suttur and Dr. G. Janardhan, Dean, College of Horticulture, Yelwal, Mysuru, sporting the 'green necklaces' offered by organisers.

Forgotten greens at Soppu Mela

Rare and commonly known varieties such as Annesoppu, Seegesoppu, Berekesoppu, Honagonesoppu, Keere, Dantu, Kempu Soppu, Chilkeere, Rajakeere, Menthe, Palak, Gani Soppu, Haale Soppu, Basale, Kadumallige Soppu, Hakkarike Soppu, Pundi Soppu and Sanna Goni Soppu are on display at the Soppu Mela.

Most of these greens grow naturally in backyards, hedges and wild spaces, but many have been discarded by today's generation as mere weeds, unaware of their medicinal and nutritional value.

Inaugurating the mela, Dr. R. Santhosh Nayak, Director of Prasaranga, Karnataka State Open University, spoke about the forgotten significance of wild greens.

"Today, cultivation is mostly driven by market demand, while wild, naturally growing greens — once part of our daily meals — are being forgotten. These greens are part of ancient traditions spanning thousands of years. With their decline, we are seeing genetic changes in plants and even disruptions to our mental and physical well-being. It's time to return to these traditional practices," he said.

Dr. B.N. Gnanendra, Head of ICAR-JSS Krishi Vigyan Kendra, Suttur, who presided over the event, raised concerns about the widespread use of herbicides.

G. Krishna Prasad, Director of Sahaja Samrudha — Organic Farmers Collective, Dean of Horticulture University, Yelachahalli Yelwal, Mysuru, Dr. G. Janardhan were present along with small-screen artiste Shivaji Rao Jadhav and farmer Nagamma.

Researcher, Parisara Adhyayana Kendra, Shivamogga, Muraleedhara Gungurmale, who travels across Karnataka with his campaign 'Ajjiya Madilu Soppina Kadalu' (grandmother's lap, ocean of greens), displayed over 50 varieties of nutrient-rich and medicinal greens, educating visitors on their importance and traditional uses.

Tomorrow, the Mela will feature a 'Greens Cooking Competition', where participants can prepare unique dishes using different varieties of greens.

Prathap Simha moves HC

In a 55-point observation made in 28 pages, Prathap Simha wants the Court to pass an order directing the respondent to not to proceed with the invitation extended to Banu Mushtaq as the chief guest for the upcoming Dasara festival or pass any such order in the interest of Justice and Equity.

Simha has stated, "Furthermore, the invitation of Banu Mushtaq as the chief guest has thus hurt the religious sentiments of the Hindu Religion wherein the invited chief guest in the past had made certain anti-Hindu and anti-Kannada comments."

Total Lunar Eclipse (Blood Moon) tomorrow

By Dr. S.N. Prasad

Dr. Prasad

The term 'blood' or 'bloody' as applied to a fully eclipsed Moon, invoking images of horror and fright, is shunned by most astronomers, both professional and amateur. It is a description that our nearest terrestrial neighbour doesn't befit any time.

Only poets, soothsayers, storytellers and occultists are fond of it. The technically correct term is 'copper-red' or 'coppery red', and it is generally a dull red or orangish red.

However, someone with dichromatic vision like me (belonging to eight percent of the male population) is not the type to offer any definitive judgement. Plain red will do for me. No blood need to be shed on this count.

Solar and lunar eclipses as seen from the Earth would not have been possible at all but for a very fortuitous and remarkable circumstance relating to the three celestial bodies. The apparent sizes of the Sun and the Moon as seen by us on Earth just happen to be nearly the same, approximately half a degree in angular diameter.

When the Earth comes between the Sun and the Moon as on a full moon day, the latter can be found in the shadow of the Earth, and hence sunlight will not be falling on it directly. This is when a lunar eclipse occurs. As seen from any point on the Earth, the eclipse may be partial or total.

One might expect the Moon to be completely hidden from view during a total lunar eclipse. However, the whole of the Moon can be seen clearly as a faint coppery red object because of sunlight scattered by the Earth's atmosphere, predominantly in the red, falling on the lunar surface and thereby illuminating it.

It is a wonderfully beautiful sight to behold. During the eclipse, the Moon itself will be located within the umbral shadow of the Earth as illustrated in Fig.1.

When and where

Avid night sky watchers are waiting for another great opportunity to see a total eclipse of the Moon early in the night of 7-8 September this year, just a few days from now.

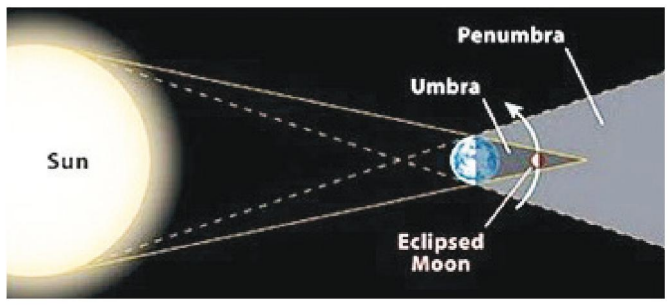
If the recent pattern of dismal weather allows a window of opportunity, the event should be visible from everywhere in the country. Unlike a total solar eclipse that lasts at best a few minutes, a total lunar one lasts much longer. The duration of the totality of the forthcoming one will be about 80 minutes. Again, very much unlike total solar eclipses, the lunar eclipse can be observed over a vast stretch of the Earth's surface.

How to see the eclipse

Watching a bright full Moon and a lunar eclipse that follows on the same night is exciting. Both the partial and total phases can be distinguished quite easily with the naked eye from a convenient vantage point, even in light-polluted urban environments. If it is a clear night sky in a location sufficiently far away from disturbing lights, the effect is all the more impressive. Unlike during a solar eclipse, no filters or optical aids are necessary, but a pair of binoculars, even small ones, enhances the view considerably.

A good 7x50 or similar low-powered binoculars provides a superb view, almost as good as the one through a small telescope with a large field of view, enveloping all of the lunar disk. The dull red hue of the lunar surface is significantly accentuated in such a view.

Different stages of eclipse



Phase	Date	Time (IST)
Penumbral eclipse begins	Sept. 7	8.58 pm
Partial eclipse begins	Sept. 7	9.57 pm
Total eclipse begins	Sept. 7	11.01 pm
Middle of totality	Sept. 7	11.42 pm
Total phase ends	Sept. 8	00.23 am
Partial phase ends	Sept. 8	01.26 am
Penumbral phase ends	Sept. 8	02.25 am

Total lunar and solar eclipses

Total solar eclipses at any given location are extremely rare events, with a frequency of one in about 375 years. It is therefore no surprise that a place like Mysuru has not seen one in living memory (an annular solar eclipse was visible on Dec. 26, 2019, but weather played spoilsport).

In contrast, total lunar eclipses are far more frequent, typically a few times per decade. The disparity arises because a total lunar eclipse is visible from the entire hemisphere of Earth experiencing night, whereas a total solar eclipse is visible only over a very narrow path on Earth's surface.

A plea for reason

Eclipses and similar natural phenomena have, across civilisations, given rise to a vast storehouse of irrational beliefs, myths, and superstitions. No system of knowledge has been completely immune to these influences, and modern media too often fuel rather than dispel them. In our society, people are even discouraged from witnessing these spectacular celestial events directly.

Most such beliefs are fanciful creations of the human mind, lacking any tangible evidence consistent with the scientific method of inquiry. The forthcoming lunar eclipse, therefore, should be seen as an opportunity not just to marvel at one of nature's most awe-inspiring spectacles, but also to strip away the layers of myth and superstition that obscure it. The plain truth is that eclipses bear no connection whatsoever to everyday human affairs. To suggest otherwise is nothing less than an eclipse of reason itself.

[The author is a former Professor of Physics and Principal of RIE Mysore and an amateur astronomer who loves watching celestial events, particularly total solar eclipses in different parts of the world. His writings can be accessed at: https://drsnprasadmysoreindia.blogspot.com/]

State Govt. spending Rs. 65,000 crore annually for education sector: CM

Bengaluru, Sept. 6 (KMS&DM)- Asserting that the State Congress Government is giving top priority for education, Chief Minister Siddaramaiah said his Government is spending Rs. 65,000 crore annually for the education sector.

Siddaramaiah

The CM was speaking at the Teachers' Day celebration organised at Vidhana Soudha Banquet Hall here yesterday.

Reminiscing his early schooling days, he said he got education at his native village school because of teacher Rajappa. He was also greatly influenced by farmer leader and Karnataka Rajya Raitha Sangha Founder Prof. M.D. Nanjundaswamy's ideology in his political journey.

Stressing that the Government is focussed on imparting value-based education which creates awareness on humanity, equality and parity, the CM said the Constitution has mandated education as a fundamental right of every citizen of the country.

Regretting that superstitions, casteism and discrimination have been reigning even in the minds of learned people such as Doctors, Professors and Engineers, Siddaramaiah wondered what kind of education they had, if they possess this type of mindset.

Noting that an unequal society driven by caste and creed has deprived opportunities for many, the CM said in the past, even women, along with Shudras were deprived of education. But with the Constitution granting the right for everyone to have education, things have rapidly changed, with girls these days bagging most of the top ranks in Colleges and Universities.

On the occasion, Siddaramaiah presented the State-level Best Teacher and Malenaada Gandhi H.G. Govindegowda awards to teachers and appreciation certificates to Government Colleges which got NAAC recognition.

Primary and Secondary Education Minister Madhu Bangarappa, Higher Education Minister Dr. M.C. Sudhakar and others were present at the event.
